GASTON SÉBIRE &

(1920–2001)

Like fireworks, Gaston Sébire's monumental floral paintings are at once beautiful and studied arrangements, as well as explosions of color into space.

Sébire's work is a faithful representation of the moment, presenting the viewer with balanced compositions that carefully consider the principles of floral design. At the same time, the color and form of the arrangements spring forth from within their vessels.

These complex compositions appeal both to those seeking a more 'contemporary' aesthetic as well as those preferring more traditional styles.

Such duality is made manifest through the scale of these works, which turn floral still-life compositions into dynamic and monumental paintings.
